

REPORT ON CLIMATE-RELATED TRANSPARENCY

---

Ekatu is one of the TCFD leading companies

Climate change is already a heavy topic, and it is getting heavier, because we are understanding that we need to do more than we are. Carlos Guilherme Moreira, CEO of Ekatu, says “to avoid dangerous climate change, we are going to need to cut emissions rapidly and also to take carbon dioxide out of the atmosphere”. There many feasible ideas coming with tradeoffs, and we need to understand whether they can be applied at a vast scale in a way that is safe, economic e socially acceptable.

Ekatu believes that the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD) recommendations are instrumental in developing a sustainable society toward shifting to a low carbon economy. Specialized in distributed generation and energy conservation, the company decided to support the recommendations prepared by TCFD, because it really brings climate change firmly into the boardroom.

Ekatu sees climate change as one of the most important challenges facing society, and the TCFD, chaired by Michael Bloomberg, connects over 100 leading companies in the world to request and require the risks and opportunities they represent. Ekatu will support recommended disclosures related to governance, strategy, risk management, metrics and targets, because it has its own platform that connects investors who need to buy plant quotas of clean energy with the generators. The market experience contributes to lessening global warming and reducing environmental impact with renewable source.